

Prompts for using Goodword inside your AI

Goodword brings your whole network — and the history behind each relationship — into the AI you already use.

BEFORE YOU GET STARTED

Get connected. Start your free trial, connect your accounts and then your AI of choice (Claude, ChatGPT, Codex or Gemini). See how →

Tell your AI who you are and who you want to meet.

“Here's what I do and the kind of people I'm trying to meet: [your role, what you're building, who matters to you right now]. Remember this whenever I ask you about my network.”

“Now — what can you do with the Goodword MCP?”

Create groups or access existing groups.

A good starting point: Champions, the people who vouch for you, and Nurture, the people you want to get closer to.

“Create a group called [name] and add everyone in my network who is a [type of person].”

“Add the following people to my [Champions / Nurture] group: [names]”

START HERE

1 Look someone up before a call

“Pull up [name]'s profile — what's their background, and when did we last talk?”

2 Draft a message that picks up where you left off

“Look at my Goodword timeline for [name] — when did we last talk, and what about? Then draft a short note that picks up where we left off.”

3 Log a call Granola didn't catch

Connect Granola and your calls log themselves. This is for phone calls, meetings in person, and anyone you talked to off-camera.

“I just got off a call with [name]. Here's what happened: [rough recap]. Log this as a debrief and remind me to follow up in [timeframe].”

4 Find the exact [investors] you're looking for

Name the space, the stage, and the city, and your AI pulls the matches from people you actually know — it works the same for customers, hires, partners, etc.

“Find investors in SF who invest in consumer AI.”

Pull up a group and see what's changed

“Show me everyone in my [group name] group, and flag anyone based in [city] who focuses on [industry or stage].”

“Now research them — has anyone raised a round or changed jobs recently?”

6

Research a group, draft outreach, and log it

“Pull my [group name] group and do internet research on [the specific thing you're looking for]. Now tell me who I should reach out to right now and why.”

“Now draft outreach to them mentioning what we already know from our history and their recent company news. Then add a note back to Goodword based on what we learned about them.”

7

AUTOMATION

Build a scheduled automation that reminds you to reach out

“Every two weeks, show me who in my [group name] group I haven't spoken to in the longest, and remind me to reach out.”

These prompts get better results the more Goodword knows about your people. Connect your accounts and try them. If you have any questions or feedback, message us: feedback@goodword.com
